Butter-Basted Steak

with Sautéed Escarole and White Beans

Basting is a simple technique for cooking meat in either its own juices, a marinade, or, in this case, melted butter. Brushing the steaks with butter while they cook keeps the meat tender while creating a golden crust. It's a method you'll find used in every steakhouse and it adds a ton of flavor without too much effort. For a quick side, silky escarole and white beans are sautéed with garlic, then seasoned with lemon juice for a bright finish.

kosher salt
black pepper
10" medium pan
10" medium high-sided pan

Recipe tips

Be sure to read through the entire recipe before you begin cooking. Trust us—you'll be glad you did!

Basting the steak adds flavor and keeps the meat moist. To baste, simply spoon or brush the melted butter over tops of steaks while they cook, at least 2–3 times.

Your beans are packed with some of their delicious cooking liquid. Save it; don't drain it! Adding this liquid with the beans creates a thick sauce and infuses the escarole with even more flavor.

Cutting meat against the grain ensures tenderness. Find the direction of the grain (muscle fibers) and slice across it, rather than parallel.

USDA recommends cooking beef to 145°F.

1. Prepare ingredients

Tear escarole leaves into bite-size pieces, discarding tough ribs and root end, then rinse thoroughly. Rinse remaining produce. Halve lemon. Pick half of thyme leaves, discarding stems; leave remaining sprigs whole. Mince garlic.

2. Sear steaks

Pat steaks dry with paper towel and season all over with ½ teaspoon salt and black pepper as desired. Heat ½ tablespoon olive oil in a medium pan over medium-high heat. When oil is shimmering, add steaks and sear until browned on bottom, 4–6 minutes (they'll finish cooking in the next step).

3. Baste steaks

Flip steaks, still over medium-high heat, and add 1 packet butter and whole thyme sprigs to pan. Cook, spooning melted butter over steaks (see recipe tip), until steaks are browned and medium rare, 4–6 minutes more (move on to the next step, but don't forget to come back). Transfer steaks to a plate, pour over butter and thyme sprigs from pan, and set aside to rest.

4. Sauté white beans and escarole

While steaks cook, heat remaining butter in a medium high-sided pan over medium-high heat. When butter is foamy, add garlic and sauté, stirring, until fragrant, 1 minute. Add white beans and their liquid and cook, gently stirring, until liquid has thickened and beans are warmed through, 3–4 minutes (see recipe tip). Stir in escarole and cook until wilted, 1 minute more.

5. Season beans and escarole

Remove pan with white beans and escarole from heat and squeeze over juice of ½ lemon. Season with ½ teaspoon salt and black pepper as desired. Save remaining lemon to brighten a glass of water.

6. Plate butter-basted steak

Once steaks have rested, remove and discard thyme sprigs. Cut steaks against the grain into ¼-inch slices (see recipe tip). Divide sliced steak between serving plates and serve sautéed escarole and white beans alongside. Garnish with thyme leaves and crushed red pepper (feel free to use less for milder heat). Enjoy!
