Gazpacho is a soup that's served cold, which makes it a refreshing go-to on warm days. With roots in southern Spain, the lovely version we've concocted here combines a tomato and vegetable base with a crunch from jicama and a touch of richness from Cotija cheese.

1. Prepare Tomatoes

Rinse tomatoes, halve lengthwise, and discard seeds. Roughly chop and place in a blender.

2. Blend Gazpacho Base

Add sherry vinegar, dried oregano, 1½ bottles vegetable juice, garlic clove, 3 tablespoons olive oil, and as much crushed red pepper as desired to blender with tomato. Blend until mostly smooth. Taste and add salt and black pepper as needed. Save remaining vegetable juice for your next Bloody Mary drink.

3. Prepare Ingredients

Rinse remaining produce. Halve bell pepper lengthwise, discard stem and seeds, then cut into ¼-inch dice. Quarter cucumber lengthwise and cut into ¼-in dice. Pick cilantro leaves, discarding stems.

4. Mix Gazpacho

Pour gazpacho base into a large bowl and stir in jicama, bell pepper, and cucumber. Taste and add more salt and black pepper as needed.

5. Plate Gazpacho

Divide gazpacho evenly between 2 bowls. Garnish with plantain chips, Cotija cheese, and cilantro. Drizzle over olive oil and serve.

If you want to make an extra thick gazpacho, soak a few pieces of country bread in water, squeeze dry, and add them to the blender along with the other ingredients.

INGREDIENTS

- 1 pound beefsteak tomatoes
- 1½ tablespoons sherry vinegar
- 1 teaspoon dried oregano
- 12 ounces vegetable juice
- 1 clove garlic
- ¼ teaspoon crushed red pepper
- 1 green bell pepper
- ½ English cucumber
- ⅙ bunch cilantro
- 6 ounces diced jicama
- ½ cup plantain chips
- 1 ounce grated Cotija cheese

YOU'LL NEED

- blender
- 3 tablespoons olive oil + more for drizzling
- kosher salt
- black pepper
