Char Siu Pork Buns

with Garlic-Cashew Broccolini

Char siu bao, or roast pork buns, are a staple grab-and-go street food in China. Marinated and roasted pork is stuffed into a pocket of dough and then steamed until soft and fluffy. In tonight's recipe, Chef Liz has captured the soul of that dish, using a cheffy hack to bring it together in a much easier fashion—pizza dough rounds filled with robustly seasoned ground pork that bake until warm and golden.

- kosher salt
- black pepper
- baking sheet
- 10" medium pan
- rolling pin (optional)
- aluminum foil

Recipe tips

Be sure to read through the entire recipe before you begin cooking. Trust us—you'll be glad you did!

Make sure to completely coat the buns in egg wash to achieve even browning and a glossy finish.

Don't worry if a little filling leaks out of the buns while baking—it's totally normal, and no big deal.

USDA recommends cooking ground pork to 160°F.

1. Prepare ingredients

Preheat oven to 450°F. Remove pizza dough from bag, cut into 6 equal pieces, and let soften at room temperature for about 15 minutes (this will make them easier to roll out). Rinse broccolini, trim, and discard woody bottoms, then cut lengthwise into 1-inch florets with long stems (halve lengthwise through thicker stems as needed). Roughly chop cashews. Thinly slice garlic. Line a baking sheet with parchment paper.

2. Brown pork

Heat 2 teaspoons canola oil in a medium pan over medium-high heat. When oil is shimmering, add pork. Season with ¼ teaspoon salt and pepper as desired. Cook, breaking up, until cooked through and no longer pink, about 5 minutes. Add ketchup, hoisin, brown sugar, and 1 packet soy sauce to pan with pork and cook, stirring, until sauce is thick and coats pork, 1–2 minutes more. Remove pan from heat.

3. Form pork buns

Sprinkle flour onto a clean, dry surface, coating a rolling pin or your hands with a thin layer. Roll or stretch doughs into circular shapes, rotating and working from center to edges, until ¼-inch thick and 6 inches in diameter. Working 1 at a time, add ¼ cup pork filling to each dough circle. Reserve pan for Step 5. Pinch edges together very firmly to create a tight seal, roll gently with your hands to form a ball, then place on prepared sheet, seam-side down.

4. Bake pork buns

In a small bowl, whisk 1 egg. Spoon or brush tops of pork buns with egg wash (see recipe tip) and sprinkle over sesame seeds. Transfer pork buns to bottom half of oven—avoid the upper racks, so that the tops don't crisp before the dough underneath can fully cook through. Bake until golden, 10 minutes. Remove pork buns from oven, cover loosely with foil, and continue baking until dough is cooked through, 6–8 minutes more (see recipe tip).

5. Sauté broccolini

While pork buns bake, wipe pan from pork clean and return to medium-high heat with 1 tablespoon canola oil. When oil is shimmering, add broccolini and cashews. Sauté, stirring frequently, until broccolini begins to soften and cashews are golden, 4–5 minutes. Add garlic and sauté, stirring, until fragrant, 1–2 minutes more. Remove pan from heat and stir in remaining soy sauce, tossing to coat.

6. Plate char siu pork buns

Divide char siu pork buns between serving plates. Serve garlic-cashew broccolini alongside. Enjoy!
