Beef Lo Mein

with Chinese Broccoli and Baby Corn

One of our favorite takeout orders, beef lo mein, actually couldn't be easier to make at home. Browned beef, aromatics, and vegetables are combined with chewy, eggy long life noodles, said to represent good fortune. Everything is coated in a sweet and savory combo of soy, hoisin, and rice wine vinegar. Get your kitchen helper to separate the noodles before they cook (so they don't stick together) and stir the sauce.

Recipe tips

Be sure to read through the entire recipe before you begin cooking. Trust us—you'll be glad you did!

Using a slotted spoon will drain off any excess fat from the beef so it doesn't end up in your lo mein. Pouring the fat down the drain might damage your pipes—instead, pour it into a heatproof container once it's cooled slightly, and dispose in the garbage.

Don't worry if some noodles are gummy and stubbornly stuck together; they'll still taste great.

USDA recommends cooking ground beef to 160°F.

1. Prepare ingredients

Bring a large pot of water to a boil over high heat. Rinse all produce. Trim and discard bottom 1 inch of Chinese broccoli stems, then cut crosswise into 2-inch pieces. Peel onion, halve, and thinly slice. Mince garlic.

2. Make sauce

In a medium bowl, whisk together soy sauce, hoisin, and rice wine vinegar until combined—this is a great task for a kitchen helper. Set sauce aside until Step 5. Pat beef dry with paper towel.

3. Cook beef

Heat 1 tablespoon canola oil in a large high-sided pan over medium-high heat. When oil is shimmering, add onion and garlic and sauté, stirring, until softening, 3 minutes. Add beef to pan and season with ¾ teaspoon salt and pepper as desired. Cook, breaking up, until browned, about 5 minutes. Using a slotted spoon, transfer beef to a bowl (see recipe tip). Wipe pan clean for Step 5.

4. Cook long life noodles

While beef cooks, season boiling water generously with salt. Over a clean, dry surface, use your hands to gently separate long life noodles—enlist a helping hand for this part (see recipe tip). Add noodles to boiling water and cook, stirring occasionally to prevent sticking, until al dente, 2–3 minutes. Drain and rinse under cold water for 30 seconds to stop cooking. Transfer noodles to bowl with beef.

5. Finish beef lo mein

Return pan from beef to medium-high heat with sesame oil. When oil is shimmering, add baby corn, carrots, and Chinese broccoli to pan and sauté until softening, 3–4 minutes. Add sauce to pan and cook, stirring, until sauce is thickened and vegetables are tender, 2–3 minutes. Add beef and noodles and cook until warmed through, 1–2 minutes more. Remove pan from heat.

6. Plate beef lo mein

Taste beef lo mein and season with salt and pepper as desired. Divide among serving bowls, garnish with sesame seeds, and dig in!
