Fontina-Stuffed Chicken

with Roasted Potatoes and Brussels Sprouts

In this recipe, you'll master butterflying, a standard butchering technique ideal for stuffed meats. When split across the middle and spread flat, the chicken breasts resemble a butterfly—we also see an open book. No matter what you call it, it's a great shape for sealing in rich Fontina cheese. In the pan, the chicken takes on a golden sear while the cheesy center turns seriously gooey.

Recipe tips

Be sure to read through the entire recipe before you begin cooking. Trust us—you'll be glad you did!

Do not drain leeks, or the dirt at the bottom will pour over them. Instead, use a slotted spoon or your hands to remove them from the water, then pat dry before adding them to the pan to avoid splattering.

If the chicken doesn't fit in the pan all at once, sear it in batches, adding oil in between as needed.

The chicken might have a slight odor as a natural reaction to its vacuum packing. USDA recommends cooking chicken to 165°F.

1. Prepare marinade ingredients

Preheat oven to 425°F. Rinse all produce. Halve 1 lemon and set aside for making marinade; cut remaining lemon into wedges for serving. Finely chop enough oregano and rosemary leaves to yield 2 teaspoons of each, discarding stems; save remainder for another use. Place chopped herbs in a large shallow bowl or resealable plastic bag. Using the flat side of a knife, gently crush garlic cloves, then add to bowl with herbs.

2. Marinate chicken

Add white wine vinegar, crushed red pepper (skip or use half for less heat), juice of 1 lemon, 1 tablespoon olive oil, 1 teaspoon salt, and black pepper to bowl with herbs and garlic. Whisk to combine. Pat chicken dry with paper towel. Using a sharp knife, slice chicken open horizontally, keeping 1 edge intact, to resemble open books. Add to marinade and gently turn to coat; set aside to marinate at room temperature.

3. Prepare vegetables

While chicken marinates, if leek arrived with dark green top, trim and discard it. Halve leek lengthwise, then cut crosswise into ¼-inch half-moons. Place in a bowl of cold water, separating pieces, to let dirt sink to bottom. Quarter Brussels sprouts lengthwise through roots. Cut potatoes into 1-inch pieces. On a baking sheet, toss Brussels sprouts and potatoes with 2 tablespoons olive oil, ½ teaspoon salt, and black pepper.

4. Roast vegetables and stuff chicken

Arrange potatoes and sprouts on sheet in a single layer and roast until beginning to soften, 12 minutes. Meanwhile, remove chicken from marinade, allowing excess to drip off, and place on a plate. Stuff Fontina into chicken, and close to seal in cheese (don't worry if some cheese peeks out). Set aside. Using your hands or a slotted spoon, remove leek from water and pat dry with paper towel (see recipe tip).

5. Finish vegetables and cook chicken

After 12 minutes of vegetables roasting, add leek, ½ tablespoon olive oil, and ¼ teaspoon salt to sheet. Toss to combine; continue roasting until very tender, 10–12 minutes more. Meanwhile, heat 1 tablespoon olive oil in a large pan over medium-high heat. When oil is shimmering, add stuffed chicken (see recipe tip). Sear until golden, 6 minutes. Flip, reduce heat to medium, and sear until cooked through and no longer pink, 7–8 minutes more.

6. Plate chicken

Serve Fontina-stuffed chicken with roasted potatoes and Brussels sprouts and lemon wedges for squeezing over. Dig in!
