Lemon-Scallop Risotto

with Peas and Leeks

We've pulled out all the stops for this Valentine's Day risotto that leans toward spring with leeks, peas, and lemon. Topped with seared bay scallops and brown butter (butter that's cooked until nutty and fragrant), the result is a silky, spoonable dish that's both bright and decadent. Instead of the traditional stir, stir, stir method, our hands-off simmer gives you more time to cozy up with the ones you love.

- ¾ cup Arborio rice
- ¼ cup white wine
- ⅓ cup rice flour
- ½ cup peas
- 1 ounce grated Parmesan cheese, divided

kosher salt
black pepper
zester (optional)
2 8" medium pots, 1 with lid
12" large pan

Recipe tips

Be sure to read through the entire recipe before you begin cooking.

It's easier and safer to zest the lemon before cutting and juicing.

Do not drain leeks, or the dirt at the bottom will pour over them. Instead, use a slotted spoon or your hands to remove them from the water, then pat dry before adding to the pot to avoid splattering.

Browned butter is easy to make, but does require paying attention so it doesn't burn. Swirl the pan around or stir often.

1. Prepare scallops

In a medium pot, combine vegetable stock and 1½ cups water and bring to a boil over medium-high heat, then remove from heat and cover to keep warm until Step 4. Pat scallops dry, place on a paper towel–lined plate, and season with ½ teaspoon salt to draw out moisture. If you have a zester on hand and want to infuse your risotto with even more flavor, rinse and zest up to ½ lemon, place in a small bowl, and set aside (see recipe tip).

2. Prepare ingredients

If leeks arrived with dark green tops, trim and discard them. Halve leeks lengthwise, then cut crosswise into ¼-inch half-moons. Place in a bowl of cold water, separating pieces, to let dirt sink to bottom. Halve lemon. Roughly chop tarragon leaves, discarding stems. Peel shallot and mince.

3. Sauté aromatics and toast rice

Remove leeks from water and pat dry with paper towel (see recipe tip). Heat 2 packets butter in a separate medium pot over medium-high heat. When butter is foamy, add leeks and shallot and sauté until softening, 5 minutes. Add rice and cook, stirring frequently, until toasted and translucent, 2–3 minutes. Stir in wine and ⅛ teaspoon salt and simmer until liquid is mostly absorbed, 1 minute.

4. Simmer risotto

Add warmed stock and water to pot with rice. Increase heat to high and bring to a boil, then reduce heat to medium high and simmer, stirring occasionally, until liquid is mostly absorbed and rice is tender, 15–18 minutes. Meanwhile, place flour on a plate and season with ¼ teaspoon salt and pepper. Pat scallops very dry with paper towel (to get a better sear), add to flour, and toss to coat.

5. Sear scallops

In a large pan, heat 1 tablespoon olive oil over medium-high heat. When oil is shimmering, add scallops and sear, without stirring, for 2–3 minutes (to keep them from sticking to the pan), then transfer to a plate with a slotted spoon, discarding any liquid. Add 2 packets butter to pan and cook, stirring occasionally, until deep golden and fragrant, 2–3 minutes (see recipe tip). Return scallops to pan and toss to coat, about 1 minute. Remove pan from heat.

6. Finish risotto and plate

In pot with risotto, off heat, stir in peas, lemon zest (if using), juice of 1 lemon, half of Parmesan, half of tarragon, remaining butter, ½ teaspoon salt, and pepper as desired. Divide risotto between serving dishes and top with seared scallops, remaining Parmesan, and remaining tarragon. Spoon over any remaining brown butter and dig in!
