

Szechuan Lamb Noodles

with Bok Choy

Szechuan or Sichuan (pronounced SEHCH-wahn) is a style of cuisine from the Chinese province of the same name. Its defining flavors are liberal amounts of garlic, and fiery chile pepper. Here, we've scaled down the intensity for a classic dish of chewy noodles, crunchy bok choy, and tender beef and lamb. Sesame oil, infused with spicy Sriracha seasoning, slicks every slurp-worthy bite.

35-45 minutes 4 servings 850 calories per serving

Plated.

Ingredients

- 1½ pounds baby bok choy
- 3 scallions
- ½ ounce ginger
- 4 cloves garlic
- ¼ cup dark soy sauce
- ¼ cup low-sodium soy sauce
- ¼ cup Shaoxing rice wine
- ¼ cup rice wine vinegar
- 6 tablespoons sesame oil, divided
- 1¼ pounds ground beef and lamb
- 1 pound long life noodles
- 1½ teaspoons Sriracha powder

You'll Need

- 2 teaspoons canola oil
- kosher salt
- black pepper
- 8" medium pot
- 12" large high-sided pan

Recipe Tips

Be sure to read through the entire recipe before you begin cooking. Trust us—you'll be glad you did!

Blooming spices, or gently frying them in oil, deepens their flavors and colors. The Sriracha powder we've sourced for this recipe is a mix of dried chiles and spices that mimic the flavors of the classic Thai hot sauce. If your fellow dining companions are a little spice-averse, you could use less—but keep in mind that a little heat is what makes this Szechuan!

USDA recommends cooking ground beef and lamb to 160°F.

Great food starts with great ingredients. We're proud to send you beef and lamb raised with no added hormones.

1. Prepare Ingredients and Make Soy Sesame Sauce

Bring a medium pot of water to a boil over high heat. Rinse bok choy, halve lengthwise, then cut crosswise into 1-inch pieces, keeping leaves and bulbs separate. Rinse scallions, trim and discard roots, and thinly slice. Trim and discard skin of ginger and mince (see Recipe Tip). Mince garlic. In a large bowl, whisk together both soy sauces, rice wine, rice wine vinegar, and half of sesame oil to combine.

2. Brown Beef and Lamb

Pat beef and lamb dry with paper towel. Heat 2 teaspoons canola oil in a large high-sided pan over medium-high heat. When oil is shimmering, add beef and lamb. Cook, breaking up, until browned, about 5 minutes. Using a slotted spoon, transfer meat to bowl with soy sesame sauce, then set aside. Discard excess fat, reserving pan for sautéeing aromatics.

3. Cook Noodles

While meat browns, season pot of boiling water generously with salt. Stir in long life noodles and cook until al dente, 2-3 minutes. Drain and rinse under cold water for 30 seconds to stop cooking—even though the noodles will be tossed in a hot pan later, this prevents them from releasing too much starch and turning gummy.

4. Infuse Oil and Sauté Aromatics

Place pan from meat over medium heat and add remaining sesame oil. When oil is shimmering, add Sriracha powder, and stir until spices are fragrant, 1-2 minutes (see Recipe Tip). Add ginger and garlic and cook until fragrant, 1-2 minutes. Add bok choy bulbs and cook until softening, about 5 minutes more.

5. Season Noodles

Add long life noodles to pan with aromatics and stir to coat with spiced oil. Push everything to outer edges of pan and add beef and lamb with sauce to center. Simmer until sauce is thickened, about 1 minute. Add bok choy leaves and stir to reincorporate noodles. Cook until leaves are just wilted, 1-2 minutes more. Remove pan from heat, taste, and add more salt and pepper as desired.

6. Plate Noodles

Divide Szechuan lamb noodles among bowls, garnish with scallions, and dig in! Slurping strongly suggested.

Join the Plated community
Post your #platedpics this week!