Hickory Salmon Sandwiches

with Tarragon Aioli and Arugula Salad

We've lovingly dubbed this stack the "SLT" because it borrows a bit from everyone's favorite bacon sandwich. With a hickory barbecue spice blend on roasted salmon, we get about as close as you can to wood-smoked flavor—without cutting down a tree. There's some garlic, ground chile, paprika, sugar, and a little salt already in there, too, so prep is truly breezy.

MEALS WORTH MAKING

Ingredients

- 2 tablespoons dried cranberries
- 1 tablespoon white wine vinegar
- 3 ounces baby arugula
- 10 ounces salmon
- ½ tablespoon hickory bbq seasoning
- 4 slices sourdough bread
- ⅛ ounce tarragon
- 1 packet mayonnaise
- 1 packet Dijon mustard

You'll need

olive oil kosher salt
black pepper aluminum foil baking sheet

Recipe tips

Be sure to read through the entire recipe before you begin cooking.

Submerging dried foods in liquid draws out their intensified flavor and helps them reconstitute, or get back some of their plump, juicy texture. Doing this first gives your cranberries plenty of time to absorb the vinegar.

This dish was designed with hardly any prep, a hands-off roast, and minimal dishes to clean. But to really make it work for you, here's our knife-free hack: Roughly tear the tarragon in Step 4, and skip halving the sandwiches before plating.

USDA recommends cooking fish to 145°F.

1. Prepare ingredients

Preheat oven to 425°F. Place dried cranberries in a large bowl with white wine vinegar; set aside to plump at room temperature until Step 5 (see recipe tip). Rinse all produce. Pat arugula dry with paper towel. Line a baking sheet with aluminum foil for the next step.

2. Prepare salmon

Pat salmon dry with paper towel and place on 1 half of prepared baking sheet, skin-side down. Season tops of fish with hickory barbecue seasoning (no need for salt here—it's already in there with the spices), then drizzle over 2 teaspoons olive oil and rub in seasoning.

3. Roast salmon and toast bread

On other half of sheet with salmon, arrange bread slices in a single layer; drizzle with olive oil and season with ¼ teaspoon salt and pepper as desired. Roast until salmon is cooked through and opaque and bread is golden brown and toasted, 12–14 minutes (move on to Step 4—but don't forget to come back). Once cool enough to handle, remove and discard skin from salmon; using a fork, flake into large pieces.

4. Make tarragon aioli

While bread and salmon cook, mince tarragon leaves, discarding stems (see recipe tip). In a small bowl, whisk together mayonnaise, Dijon, tarragon, 1 teaspoon olive oil, ⅛ teaspoon salt, and pepper as desired to combine. Use remaining downtime to set the table.

5. Assemble sandwiches

Once toasted, flip bread slices and spread plain sides with tarragon aioli. Top 2 slices with a small handful of arugula, lightly pressing into aioli to keep in place, then add flaked salmon. Close with remaining bread slices, aioli-side down. To bowl with pickled cranberries, add 1 tablespoon olive oil, ⅛ teaspoon salt, and pepper as desired; whisk to combine, then add remaining arugula and toss to coat.

6. Plate sandwiches

Cut hickory salmon sandwiches in half on a diagonal and transfer to serving plates. Serve with arugula and cranberry salad. Dig in!
