Chicken, Kale, and Fregola Bowls

with Pesto and Parmesan

Tonight's dinner features fregola, a small, toasted semolina pasta similar to pearled couscous. We add whole grape tomatoes to the pot with the fregola and cook them together until the pasta is tender and the tomatoes begin to burst. Stir in pesto and Parmesan, then pile into bowls with slices of thyme-infused chicken and a bright kale salad.

Recipe tips

Be sure to read through the entire recipe before you begin cooking. Trust us—you'll be glad you did!

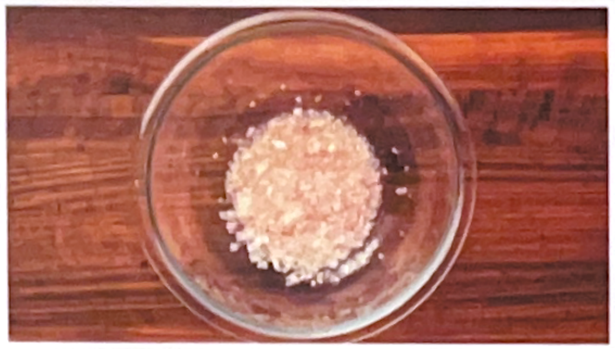

Save the remaining lemon and shallot for a different recipe, like another simple salad dressing.

The whole thyme sprigs seasoned the chicken with aromatic flavor during cooking, but won't be pleasant to bite into. If a few thyme leaves fell off in the pan, though, no worries—they'll add even more flavor to the chicken.

The chicken might have a slight odor as a natural reaction to its vacuum packing. USDA recommends cooking chicken to 165°F.

1. Marinate shallot

Bring a small pot of water to a boil over high heat. Rinse all produce. Halve lemon. Peel shallot and mince enough to yield 2 tablespoons. In a large bowl, stir together shallot and juice of ½ lemon; set aside to marinate until Step 4 (see recipe tip).

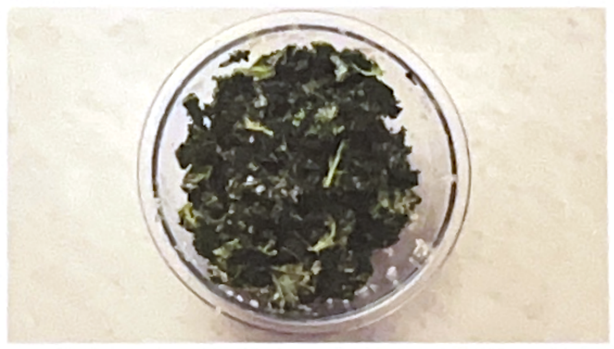

2. Cook fregola and tomatoes

Season boiling water generously with salt. Stir in fregola and cook for 7 minutes (move on to Step 3—but don't forget to come back). Then, add whole grape tomatoes and continue cooking until fregola is tender and tomatoes are soft, 2–3 minutes more. Drain fregola and tomatoes and return to pot, off heat. Using a spoon, gently mash tomatoes in pot to release their juices. Stir to combine; set aside.

3. Cook chicken

While fregola cooks, pat chicken dry with paper towel and season all over with ½ teaspoon salt and pepper. Heat 2 teaspoons olive oil in a medium pan over medium-high heat. When oil is shimmering, add chicken; scatter around whole thyme sprigs in pan. Sear until cooked through and no longer pink, about 6 minutes per side. Remove and discard whole thyme sprigs (see recipe tip). Transfer chicken to a plate; set aside to rest.

4. Make kale salad

While chicken cooks, pat kale dry with paper towel; tear leaves into bite-size pieces, discarding long stems. To bowl with marinated shallot, add 1 tablespoon olive oil, ¼ teaspoon salt, and pepper as desired and whisk to combine. Add kale to bowl and, using your hands, massage until fully coated and beginning to soften, 1–2 minutes. Set kale salad aside for serving.

5. Finish fregola and slice chicken

To pot with fregola and tomatoes, still off heat, stir in pesto and half of Parmesan to combine. Cut rested chicken into ¼-inch slices.

6. Plate chicken and fregola

Divide kale salad between serving bowls. Top with fregola, then sliced chicken. Garnish with remaining Parmesan. Enjoy!
