Coconut-Poached Chicken

with Jasmine Rice and Crispy Shallots

The coconut palm can grow thousands of nuts over its 70-year average lifespan. In the 16th century, the Spanish and Portuguese dubbed the nut coco ("head" or "grin") for the shell's face-like indentations. For this grin-worthy Thai dish, we're using coconut milk as poaching liquid for chicken and as the creamy base for a soy lime dressing. Go nuts!

Recipe Tips

Be sure to read through the entire recipe before you begin cooking.

Coconut milk solids naturally separate from the liquids during transit. No worries; it will come together during cooking. Vigorously shake the can before opening, or pierce the solids with a spoon before using to avoid a messy splatter!

Always wash your knife, board, and hands after cutting spicy chiles.

The chicken might have a slight odor as a natural reaction to its vacuum packing. USDA recommends cooking chicken to 165°F.

1. Cook Rice

In a small pot, combine rice, 1¼ cups water, and ¼ teaspoon salt, and bring to a boil over high heat. Reduce heat to medium low, stir once, and cover pot. Simmer until water is fully evaporated, 10-12 minutes, then remove pot from heat and let stand, still covered, for 10 minutes. Fuff rice with a fork, then cover to keep warm until ready to serve.

2. Poach Chicken

Open coconut milk (see Recipe Tip). Spoon 3 tablespoons coconut milk into a large bowl and set aside; pour remainder into a medium high-sided pan and bring to a boil over high heat. Pat chicken dry with paper towel and season with ½ teaspoon salt and pepper. Add to pan with coconut milk. Simmer, flipping halfway, until cooked through and no longer pink, about 15 minutes total. Transfer chicken to a plate, discarding milk from pan.

3. Prepare Ingredients

While chicken poaches, peel shallot and thinly slice into rings. Rinse remaining produce. Halve lime. Pick basil and mint leaves, discarding stems—these herbs are used whole in the salad, so feel free to use as much or as little as you like! Trim and discard scallion roots and thinly slice. Halve Thai chile lengthwise. Using a knife tip, discard seeds and stem, then finely chop (see Recipe Tip).

4. Make Dressing

Add sesame oil, soy sauce, juice of 1 lime, ¼ teaspoon salt and pepper as desired to large bowl with reserved coconut milk. Whisk to combine, then set aside.

5. Fry Shallots

Wipe pan from chicken clean and add 3 tablespoons canola oil over medium-high heat. When oil is shimmering, add 1 shallot slice to pan. If it sizzles immediately, keep going; if not, try again once the oil has gotten hotter. Fry all shallots, stirring to prevent burning, until lightly browned and crisp, about 5 minutes. Using a slotted spoon, transfer to a paper towel-lined plate to drain.

6. Plate Chicken

Shred chicken using 2 forks, or roughly chop into bite-size pieces. Add lettuce, shredded chicken, basil, mint, scallions, and Thai chile (skip or use half for less heat) to bowl with dressing, and toss to coat. Divide rice between serving plates, top with coconut-poached chicken salad, and garnish with crispy shallots. Dig in!
